DE SURIN SIGNATURE MASSAGE

“De Surin Bamboo Massage”

A Bamboo Massage is the use of hollow bamboo canes that are warmed to be used at room temperature in general massage. They are used as a tool in all modalities of massage. The treatment is currently gaining popularity in spas.

The technique of the bamboo canes replaces the therapist's hands, and it is able to give a deeper, firmer massage. The cane is held by the therapists and rolled over the muscle with the same strokes they would use with their hands. The muscle is then kneaded, which assists in the release of tension and easing of knots. This technique uses the general principle of massage. Massage practitioners often use the whole arm from elbow to wrist, however, the use of the bamboo cane replaces this technique.

The effect from this technique works in a very similar way to Stone Massage. Hands are used to work over the muscles and the cane is used to focus on knots. Muscles relax to deeper level when the cane is warmed. The principles and benefits of general massage are found in this modality. As the cane is used instead of the hand, all technique and modalities can incorporate the use of bamboo canes. As the therapists are not using their hands as much, this can have the added benefit of less stress to the practitioner's hands, wrists, arms, and shoulders.
